The euro-area economy recorded its fastest expansion in six years in the second quarter even as momentum eased in June due to weakening services activity. A composite purchasing managers' index (PMI) dropped to a five-month low of 55.7, IHS Markit said on Friday. Economists surveyed by Bloomberg predicted the index would ease to 56.6 from 56.8 in May. Manufacturing grew at its steepest pace since 2011, while a gauge for services slipped to a five-month low. The report comes two weeks after the European Central Bank said risks to the economic outlook were broadly balanced and no longer tilted to the downside. The recovery is broadly based and companies are adding jobs at a brisk pace amid strong optimism about future growth.

Members of the Reserve Bank of Australia said that the country's economy was growing in line with expectations. Price pressure remained broadly subdued, the minutes said, thanks in part to a strengthening Australian dollar and a softening greenback. At the meeting, the bank kept its benchmark lending rate unchanged at the record low 1.50 percent, as expected. The bank reiterated that the low level of interest rates is continuing to support the Australian economy. Policymakers also noted more consistent signs of non-mining business investment picking up.

The sentiment indicator for the Swedish economy rose slightly further in June and continues to imply a very high GDP growth. But the indicator has overrated actual growth noticeably in quarters ahead. The sentiment for overall economy rose to 112.1 from 111. On the contrary, confidence in the manufacturing sector improved from already elevated levels, noted Nordea Bank in a research report. Sentiment for manufacturing industry rose to 119.9 from 117.

The Swiss economy is projected to expand at a slightly slower pace this year, according to the quarterly economic forecast published by the State Secretariat for Economic Affairs. The expert group of SECO on Tuesday said gross domestic product will grow only 1.4 percent this year. At the same time, projection for 2018 was retained at 1.9 percent. A further marked increase in economic momentum is to be expected over the coming quarters given the promising outlook for the global economy and positive leading indicators.
